

Party Work Is the Work with People

One day in October Juche 59 (1970), Chairman Kim Jong Il gave instructions on bringing the work of the Workers' Party of Korea in step with the requirements of the developing reality.

He said: What is most important for the WPK officials is to understand people well; work with people is the organizational and political work to rally them closely behind the WPK and its leader by educating and remoulding them, and it is the work of encouraging the masses of the people to be mobilized voluntarily to fulfill their revolutionary task with a consciousness befitting masters; the WPK officials should make efforts to understand them before doing all their work; to understand people is to understand their innermost thoughts; people's innermost thoughts are at the bottom of their hearts, so we have to see through their hearts to know their innermost thoughts.

Officials cherished in their hearts the principle of the WPK's work that when the work, work with people, was turned into work with their feelings and sentiments so that they could open their hearts, could the WPK be strengthened and developed into a motherly party which has struck its roots deep among the masses, into an invincible party, which has a strong sense of organization and fighting efficiency.