

Make Tireless Efforts for People

One day several years ago, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un said that officials should regard people as heaven, respect them and make their demands and interests the first consideration in their work, upholding the lofty aim of President Kim Il Sung and Chairman Kim Jong Il who had lived and worked with the ideal “The people are my God” as their lifetime motto.

The officials were moved once again as they recalled the leaders, who had devoted their all for sake of the people with firm faith that if people wanted, they would take off the stars from the sky, and bring flowers in blossom even on a rock.

Looking at them, Kim Jong Un continued: The Workers’ Party of Korea organizations, out of maternal feelings, should always value and love the people, guarantee their political integrity to the last and help them add lustre to it; officials should devote their all for the people; they exist for the people not vice versa; by learning from the great leaders’ view of the people, all officials should go among the people, sharing good times and bad with them, and make tireless efforts for their good.

His words reflected his firm determination to carry forward the history of great leaders’ love for the people.
